GOLDFIELD RUSHES TO A NEW STRIKE

Diamondfield Jack Davis was the first Goldfield man to reach the new strike which has excited Goldfield for the past forty-eight hours. He secured fourteen claims adjoining the Len Richards strike, and a townsite, returning home Thursday morning. George Vickers, Harry Macmillan and Bob Norrington are associated with him in the locations, which are on three sides of Richards' ground.

Ole Elliott has an interest in the Richards ground, and it was a rich specimen of ore from his ground that sent Goldfield on the 100-mile trip across the desert. Davis says that the big ledge in which the values are found cuts the formation of a quartz mountain, and resembles Delamar, Nevada. "If Ole Elliott was to quit everything and work that ground, he would have all the money he wants," says Davis. "Cattle Springs is only two miles away, to the south, and there are other springs near there and plenty of wood. Richards has been running cattle in that country and made the first find. The rich ore came from the surface, near the hanging wall. The ledge is sixty feet wide and pans for a distance of 400 feet. I believe it will make a big district."

The Keelyn car, which carried prospectors who are out for Keelyn, R. L. Colburn and Ole Elliott, reached camp just before Davis left. The distance is about 110 miles over the Kawich road and down past Chalk springs. It is southeast of Goldfield and four miles north of Indian creek. —Goldfield Chronicle.

A REDUCTION AD ABSURDUM.

"The late Walter A. Wyckoff, the tramp professor of Princeton," said a magazine editor, "had in his tramping days many a quaint experience."

"He was talking to me one night about political economy. He wanted to prove to me that I was wrong in my claim that labor-saving inventions robbed poor men of work. He said at the argument's end that he was reminded of a conversation he overheard in 1900 on a tramp in Pennsylvania."

"They were digging," he began, "filter beds on the outskirts of Philadelphia with a steam shovel. The wonderful shovel, whistling and grunting would dart into the earth, jerk out again and swing up merrily toward the waiting car a ton of dirt at a lick. Finally the young laborer said with an oath:

"Ain't it a shame, George to shovel dirt that way?"

"How so?" said George, the elder laborer.

"Why, that there machine is taking bread out of the mouths of 500 men what would be required to do the same work with hand shovels."

"George laughed.

"Go on!" he said; "you don't reason right. Look a-here, if this steam diggin' would give work to 500 men with shovels, why not get 5000 men with teaspoons for the job." —Philadelphia Press.
